Invitation

On behalf of the Organizing Committee, we are pleased to invite you to join us at the II International Congress on Allergen Vaccines and VI International Congress on Vaccine Adjuvants, organized by the Latin American Association of Immunology (ALAI) and the Cuban Society of Immunology. In this occasion, holding both meetings jointly, will enhance the opportunities of cross-fertilization and scientific exchange on several contact points between these fields, on the common ground of immunology and biotechnology. The scientific program is specially designed to foster open and deep discussion of hot topics. Keynote addresses, oral presentations and interactive poster sessions will give a unique opportunity for exchanging ideas and foster cooperation among colleagues from academic and clinical research institutions, industry and regulatory agencies from developed and developing countries.

The venue, located in the beautiful beach of Varadero, provides a paradisiacal environment, which allows for an effective combination of science and relaxation in the friendliest atmosphere.

We are looking forward to having the opportunity of warmly welcoming you at our International Workshops on Adjuvants and Allergen Vaccines in Varadero, Cuba, from 6 to 12, May, 2012.
